

INSTITUTE FOR NEUROFUNCTIONAL PSYCHOLOGY™

Timothy Daigle, MBA, PMP

Chief Financial Officer & Treasurer

Timothy Daigle serves as Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer of the Institute for Neurofunctional Psychology, overseeing financial governance, fiduciary responsibility, and regulatory compliance.

He brings over 15 years of senior-level experience in financial management, risk oversight, and internal controls across global financial institutions, including SMBC, MUFG, Credit Suisse, and J.P. Morgan Chase. His work has focused on building transparent financial systems, strengthening organizational controls, and ensuring compliance with complex regulatory frameworks.

Mr. Daigle holds a Master of Business Administration from the University of Southern California Marshall School of Business and a Bachelor of Science in Finance with a minor in Information Technology from Syracuse University. His professional experience includes executive and senior leadership roles at global and regional financial institutions, where he led enterprise-level governance initiatives, regulatory compliance programs, and complex financial reporting functions.

As CFO, Mr. Daigle oversees financial planning, budgeting, and fiscal strategy to support INP's sustainability and growth. In his role as Treasurer of the Board, he provides fiduciary oversight, financial governance, and internal control review to ensure compliance with nonprofit best practices and regulatory requirements.